Specific Mechanical Systems Celebrates 35 Years of Success in Brewing & Distilling

Happy 35th anniversary to Specific Mechanical Systems of Victoria, British Columbia, Canada! Founded in 1984 and incorporated in 1986, Specific has been manufacturing high quality, Canadian made brewing and distilling systems for award winning breweries and distilleries worldwide.

“The success of our company is based on the values instilled by its owners, the founders of the company back in 1984. We value building long lasting relationships with our customers and creating a feeling of community and inclusion both within the walls of our facilities as well as with our customers. Our commitment to the highest standards of manufacturing quality, intuitive and proven designs for each customer project and the industry’s best customer service program are the pillars that have propped up our name as the manufacturer of choice for thousands of customers.

The company has experienced many changes in the brewing and distilling industries, including booms and dips, and has always continued to advance by maintaining strong fiscal policy and incorporating the latest technological advancements to offer industry leading systems. You can always feel secure when choosing to invest in equipment from Specific Mechanical Systems,” said Chad MacIsaac, Sales & Marketing Manager at Specific Mechanical Systems.

The company evolved from manufacturing 5 – 20 BBL systems in the 80’s and 90’s to fully automated systems well over 100 BBL in size. In addition to building breweries and distilleries, Specific also manufactures process systems for other industries, including cannabis, dairy, pharmaceutical and oil & gas.

Specific operates two manufacturing factories at its location in Victoria, BC, and employs approximately 100 staff, including skilled trades, design engineers, automation engineers, project managers, sales, customer service, and office administration.
